CANAL CASE ALIY—That which is missing is what is significant about this picture. Absent from the life of Egypt's breeding grounds near Cairo are the tourists. They often fill the benches dotted across the tuxedo desert as points from which to observe the ancient tombs of the Pharaohs. The tourist trade is a casualty of the Middle East unrest, resulting for the time being as surely as the tolls which block the Suez Canal.

The Bostong-built pilotless interceptor is very much smaller wings, but expert estimates place its top speed somewhere in the 2,000-mile-per-hour-plus range. To be equipped with electronic sensing devices which will "find" enemy craft many miles from their present target, Bosman presumably would be adaptable to various types of war heads.

ELECTRONIC WHATZIT? This "Whist" doesn't electronically. The "Whist" is a "Whist" device, designed by Thomas Edison of Paris, France, turns itself on and off, perceives heat and cold, and reacts to color, sound and light. "Whist," as the name is called, isn't too useful, but for a whist with a word, it sure has.
